It is known that fast sayings appeared a long time ago. With their help, children learned to understand native language speech in the form of interesting jokes. Today, speech therapists create special prompts for children from sequences of letters and words that are difficult to pronounce, and repeated pronunciation of many of them out loud eliminates speech defects [1].

All of us are familiar with fast sayings from childhood. Funny phrases and rhymes are sometimes easy to pronounce correctly without mistakes, and sometimes it is difficult for others to understand fast sayings in a meaningful situation. helps to learn, get the correct diction and get rid of speech defects that significantly complicate the understanding and interpretation of words by your interlocutor [1].

If you are learning a foreign language, then you know how difficult it is to achieve the correct pronunciation and correct accent. In teaching your knowledge and skills, you will be helped by English rapid pronunciations, built on the same principle as Uzbek speakers. The words in them are chosen in such a way that the combination of sounds makes you speak not only quickly and clearly, but also with the correct accent. Quick Sayings in English has long been included in the foreign language learning program, because the effect of this type of lessons is considered to be long-term, which has a positive effect on the students' speech. When learning a foreign language and working on improving speech techniques, a special place is given to quick utterances, which are suitable for both independent work and classroom work.

It is not easy to teach pronunciation with quick pronunciations, and at first such an activity may seem useless, but it is not. Fast sayings are a very effective tool for developing the correct articulation of English sounds, which has a beneficial effect on diction and pronunciation [2, p. 57]. In the process of learning a foreign language, the introduction of rapid utterances affects the development of accurate pronunciation and an increase in the speed of speech. As a rule, rapid utterances are introduced at the beginning of the lesson to activate the speech apparatus and mobilize students [2]. It is worth noting that many experienced teachers use Uzbek-speaking ones in addition to foreign language prompts. This method of work allows to improve diction and ease of intonation not only in the studied language, but also in the native language.

Working on quick expressions is important not only for future translators, but also for businessmen who participate in international conferences, exhibitions, symposia, etc. in the nature of their activities. Fast sayings are commonly used not only as puns in the English-speaking world, but also often as a form of entertainment for children. These simple, but at the same time phrases filled with sounds are intended for the speaker to practice English pronunciation, improve diction. A distinctive feature of quick sayings is the presence of a rhythm that helps memorization [3]. The method of working with fast pronunciations is very well known: read syllables slowly, read words slowly, and then faster, faster and very fast, but it is necessary to pronounce correctly.

Phrases are usually phrases that contain phonetically similar words. These words are often what we call minimal pairs, meaning they are pairs of words that differ by only one sound, which is why tongue twisters are difficult to pronounce even for native English speakers [3].

How to use expletives correctly? Slowly start repeating the tongue twister out loud. Make sure it sounds clear in your performance. Learn tongue twisters by heart. Repeat the fast as quickly as possible, repeating it three times in a row without stopping or hesitating [1]. Try to choose a few languages that work out the sounds that are difficult for you and read them every day - it only takes 5-7 minutes a day.

A few words about the benefits of quick speaking. Few people think that rapid speaking was invented primarily to improve human diction. If a person tries to learn a foreign language, he starts from the beginning like a child: he learns sounds, the simplest words and phrases. Foreign language learners should never neglect tongue twisters. First, as mentioned above, Fast Saying improves diction. Fast pronunciations help sharpen pronunciation and make speech more beautiful and clear. Second, fast pronunciations that are pronounced correctly can help students virtually eliminate the accent.

Third, it's just funny! Especially when you are not alone and are sitting next to the same children, they try to repeat a set of whistles and grunts. But the result will be felt immediately! It is important to pronounce English Quick Sayings correctly, not quickly. For example, without confusing the interdental sound [th] with a simple [s]. I think Quick Sayings is a very useful addition to learning English. These are pure words, that is, sounds and clear pronunciation of words. These are phrases that contain many phonetically similar words, ie. pairs of words that differ by one sound. You need to listen and learn to speak in order to understand, but for this you need to work on your weaknesses. Practice using quick English phrases. After all, the peculiarity of Quick Sayings is that words with difficult and complex sounds are selected in them [2, 59]. And when learning English, Quick Sayings will help you learn to pronounce sounds and words accurately, get rid of speech defects. With the help of rapid utterances, the correct articulation of sounds in English is developed, which affects pronunciation and increases the speed of speech. Thus, it improves diction. I think that if you pronounce the prompts correctly in English, that is. loudly, slowly, then memorize and repeat three times in a row without stopping and without hesitation, and you can almost get rid of the accent. Based on all of the above, it becomes clear that quick sayings can become an indispensable assistant in establishing correct speech and diction. With the help of rapid pronunciations, it is easier to learn to pronounce words correctly without mixing sounds together.
